MIZZOU ONLINE is a service unit within the University of Missouri’s Office of the Provost and functions as an administrative gateway through which MU’s schools and colleges offer their distance degrees and classes.

Distance education is integral to the University of Missouri’s land-grant mission of making the state’s flagship institution accessible.
Mizzou Online’s mission is to collaborate with academic units and administrative offices to support distance students and expand distance education at the University of Missouri.

Student access
In AY 16–17, online education made it possible for students in 48 states and 50 other countries to have access to Mizzou faculty and award-winning curricula.

We serve both campus students who need individual online classes and distance students who seek to earn a Mizzou degree or certificate without relocating to Columbia, Missouri. In AY 16–17, more than 16,400 students took at least one class facilitated by Mizzou Online, and 3,643 were designated as distance students.

Campus support
Mizzou Online is a self-sustaining, revenue-generating operation. Revenue is distributed to central campus for the general operating budget as well as to the academic departments that create and teach online classes. In AY 16–17, Mizzou Online transferred more than $10.6 million to central campus and more than $13.5 million to academic units.

Supporting the development of new online offerings continues to be a focus. In AY 16–17, Mizzou Online provided more than $1.9 million to academic units that applied for funds to move their degree and certificate programs to online formats.

Mizzou Online provides financial support for a number of campus departments and programs, including ET@MO, the Campus Writing Program, the Online Writery and the Office of Undergraduate Studies.

Faculty assistance
Mizzou Online continues to support faculty development by funding awards that acknowledge quality in online teaching and course design. In AY 16–17, 11 faculty members received support to attend professional development conferences in distance teaching and learning. Eight faculty members received financial incentives to participate in the Quality Course Review and the Online Teaching Foundations Program offered through ET@MO.

REVENUE SHARE
Mizzou Online transferred $24 million to academic units and central campus in AY 16–17.

101 OPTIONS
In AY 16–17, Mizzou offered 101 online or hybrid bachelor’s, master’s, educational specialist, doctoral and certificate programs.

790 GRADUATES
completed their degrees at a distance in AY 16–17. MU honored their achievement with an online commencement ceremony.

650 INSTRUCTORS
In AY 16–17, 650 instructors taught classes facilitated by Mizzou Online in 97 subject areas.

359 days
STUDENTS began an online self-paced class nearly every day last year.

“I really enjoyed the self-paced option. It felt good to know there was a real person on the other side of the computer. My professor was consistently open to meeting with me.”

REBECCA MEYER
Biology major, German minor
Missouri
STUDENTS USE ONLINE CLASSES to accommodate their busy schedules, add work and volunteer experiences, and be more involved on campus. More than 45 percent of the Mizzou student population enrolled in at least one class facilitated by Mizzou Online last year.

Summer is a popular time for students to add online classes to their schedules. In AY 16-17, more than 275 classes were available through the Mizzou@Home program.

Online classes are offered in semester-based and self-paced formats. Semester-based courses typically follow the campus timeline, and students move through the content as a cohort. Self-paced courses allow students to progress through the material at their own pace. The flexibility of this format allowed for students to begin an online self-paced class on nearly every day of the last academic year.

EXAMS WERE PROCTORED
by Mizzou Online for self-paced and semester-based online classes in AY 16–17. This includes exams arranged in students’ local areas with qualified proctors.
LAST YEAR, STUDENTS FROM 48 STATES took classes facilitated by Mizzou Online, with 393 students residing in 50 countries outside the United States.

Mizzou is authorized to offer distance education in all 50 states. Mizzou Online maintains the responsibility of complying with each state’s regulations concerning distance education on behalf of MU’s schools and colleges.
“A year into the program, I made a big life decision to become a travel nurse. The online DNP program through the Sinclair School of Nursing made it possible for me to travel around the country and continue my studies.”

INCREASING ACCESS to the award-winning faculty and curricula at the University of Missouri continues to be a priority. Access to the University is, after all, at the core of our land-grant mission of serving Missourians.

Because high-speed internet service is essential to online learning, we continue to look for opportunities to partner with regional educational institutions. Through the Missouri Community College Association Internet Connectivity Agreement, graduates of Missouri’s public community colleges can continue to use their local computer labs to access their University of Missouri online classes.
“The positive coaching faculty are embedded in this industry. They are coaches. They are administrators. They are athletic directors. Students have access to that real world experience.”

We are growing our online portfolio faster than our peers. In a recent EAB analysis of 38 public, highest research activity doctoral universities, Mizzou was found to be adding online programs faster than 33 of the comparators.

With 101 online degree and certificate options available last year, MU ranks second for number of offerings in both the public AAU member list and the SEC.

More online offerings are in development. Mizzou Online provided $1.9 million in AY 16-17 to schools and colleges to develop online versions of their degrees and certificates. Proposals for new online programs are vetted for market demand, growth potential and competitive environment.

MIZZOU added online degree options in the last year and retains its No. 2 position among SEC and AAU public institutions in terms of distance offerings. See Appendix for a list of Mizzou’s programs.

DATA SOURCES
Online and blended program counts from SEC member institutions’ websites. Notes about the comparison: Institutions don’t always indicate whether a program is 100 percent online or blended. We limited our tallies of program variations to those that officially appear on transcripts. We did not count professional certificate offerings that result in continuing education units.
DISTANCE STUDENTS make up approximately 10 percent of the total Mizzou population. 3,643 distance students generated 12,184 enrollments for a total of 34,796 credit hours.

Since most of Mizzou’s online programs are at the graduate level, a majority of distance students are graduate students, are in their mid-30s and work full time while they take classes. In a recent survey of distance-coded Mizzou students, 82 percent reported they work full time.

Some students began their college journeys decades ago and are now able to complete the bachelor’s degrees they always wanted. Others are seeking their online graduate degrees for job growth, leadership development or promotion. Hear from Mizzou’s distance students at youtube.com/MizzouOnline.
“Forty-three years ago, I had to leave MU due to a family emergency. After a lifetime of professional experience, I was able to receive my diploma. My son is a junior at the University of Missouri and I am proud of our family’s tiger legacy.”

DISTANCE STUDENTS REPORT THAT THEY CHOOSE MIZZOU over other institutions because of a combination of affordability and the overall reputation of the school and their selected degree programs. In a recent survey of current distance students, cost was noted as the most important selection factor when they chose MU.

Mizzou continues to pair affordability with quality online programs that offer the same learning outcomes as on-campus programs. To that end, we provide funding for two tuition awards that help distance students: the Mizzou Online Military Tuition Award and the Mizzou Online Community College Tuition Award.

In AY 16-17, 54 distance students received these tuition awards.
“Graduating from the University of Missouri is an important milestone. It’s more than the diploma I have received. It’s more than the degree I have earned. It is the knowledge I have gained that can be applied to my classroom.”
